The DIMMER VIEW

by Max Goodwin

The Idaho Narc Story

The CIA couldn't have screwed it up more.

If it proves anything, it is that federal dollars can't solve crime problems.

Idaho discovered it after three years of funding its first Statewide Narcotics and Drug Enforcement Bureau.

When the good news came to Idaho that such a bureau would get a half-million dollars in federal and state funds, the public assumed that it had a drug problem. The bureau would be charged with successfully tracking down drug dealers, was the joyful assumption.

Today Idaho is sadder and wiser. The three-year old Bureau has been discredited and reorganized. A third of its 34 members ,including its chief, have been fired or forced to resign according to a report in a recent issue of NEWSWEEK.

Criminal charges have been lodged against several of the agents and the youthful Idaho Attorney General has lost his job.

The report was filed in NEWSWEEK by Gerald C. Lubenow and it has all the elements of a modern-day Keystone Kops Komedy.

The Bureau's ineptitude which caused Attorney General Tony Park to step down is an amazing yarn of wasted effort and money.

The Bureau set out to eradicate drugs in the Boise area bars — drugs that Attorney General Park admits may not have been as great a problem as first suggested.

The Bureau had so much money to make buys that the activity may have created more drug traffic than there was before the Bureau was organized.

"We had this great chunk of federal dough," Park concedes "and a lot of very green men who didn't understand what their mission was."

But they were energetic. The narcs had operators at $3.00 an hour to make connections with drug dealers. One agent gave an operative $1,000 to make contact while the agent waited outside a bar. The operative walked in the front door and out the back. Goodbye $1,000!

Another agent, who was burned when a dealer sold him powdered aspirin as heroin, gathered other agents and came back as Mafia hoods and took their money back at gunpoint.

Agents offered to buy guns in the underworld to support their cover. This sparked a wave of sporting-goods-store burglaries around Pocatello, NEWSWEEK reported.

When police figured out what was going on and complained, the narcs accused them of being involved in drug traffic.

One pair of undercover agents spent weeks setting up an elaborate buy only to find that both buyer and seller were undercover narcs.

In Coeur d'Alene some newly hired hourly operatives were doing fine until they were caught peddling for profit.

A large quantity of marijuana being held for evidence in an important case was destroyed because of organizational misunderstanding.

A female ex-addict was put on the payroll when she professed to know the inner workings of a statewide drug syndicate. Pressured for the story, she and an agent holed up in a Pocatello motel and emerged with an elaborate organizational chart. At its head, they claimed, was a local city councilman who, incidentally, was head of the state Democratic Party. The outraged councilman demanded a lie-detector test, passed it and won an apology from Attorney General Park and an admission from state officials that the charges were totally groundless.

In three years the Bureau spent more than a million dollars and did not turn up a single major drug dealer.

.....It is difficult to judge the effectiveness of the Bureau, however, since its statistics were so poorly kept that no one really knows what its over-all record is in terms of arrests, convictions and confiscations.

Today, the state Department of Enforcement operates the Bureau under its new director, William Penberthy, a veteran of 24 years with the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs. He is moving slowly, sifting prospective agents carefully and monitoring operations.

"I'm really surprised how bad things are," he said ". . . there's heroin, amphetamines, cocaine, LSD. You name it, they've got it."

Now it's Penberthy's job to take it away.

Three Men Rob Grove Liquor Store

"Give me all the cash in the drawer," one of three black male robbers instructed Margaret Jean Howell, 50, the clerk at Hi-Lo Liquor store, 2757 Imperial ave., in Lemon Grove.

The robbery occurred at 11 a.m. Monday and was interrupted by customers twice. One of the robbers brandished a blue steel revolver as he ordered the clerk and Barbara Blair, a customer, into the walk-in cooler and tied them hand-to-foot before fleeing with an undetermined amount of money.

Jenifer Divine, a second customer, came in just as the three robbers were leaving. She was not molested.

The robbers, all described as being in their early 20's told clerk Howell to "Take it slow, take it slow" after they ordered her to put all the cash in a bag.

Witnesses saw the men walking east toward Citronella st. after the robbery.

Death Claims Roy Close, Well-Known Square Dancer

Funeral services were held today for Sidney Roy Close, 80, a well-known square dancer-round dance caller-teacher, who died at his home at 7529 Central ave., Lemon Grove on Sunday.

He had not been ill at the time of his death.

Until recently he was one of the state's most noted square dance enthusiasts and is said to have taught calling to most of the state's present square dance callers.

He also taught square and round dancing.

Roy Close

Close came to San Diego from Lodi, New York where he was born. Lodi was a 300-population farming community which has not increased in size during the years, the family said.

It was there he became interested in square dancing and became a popular dancer-caller. His interest in dancing remained until he retired completely—about two years ago.

Between Lodi and San Diego he taught school in Idaho then Oregon where he met and married Juanita Borchardt, a music-art teacher. There was a rule against teachers marrying in those days and the newlyweds were dismissed.

Taught Industrial Arts

That led the couple to San Diego in 1923 where he taught industrial arts in Wilson and Memorial Junior High schools.

The couple came to Lemon Grove in 1928 where they built their present residence on Central ave. He retired from teaching junior high school industrial arts in 1954 — leaving a 34-year history behind. He then devoted his attention to square dancing which became his second profession.

Many will remember him through the activities of his wife Juanita who for years was active in Camp Fire Girls movement; the Grossmont Concert Association and for her oil painting activities.

In addition to his wife, Jaunita, he is survived by three daughters: Florence McAlexander of San Diego; Jean Shaw of Lemon Grove; Carroll Anderson of La Mesa; a son Duane "Bud" Close of El Cajon; a sister and brother in Lodi and seven grandchildren.

Only two persons were charged however.

Hans Doe Moves Up In Metro Water Works

Hans Doe, San Diego County Water Authority chairman, has been elected as a vice-chairman of the Metropolitan District of Southern California under newly adopted rules providing for three vice-chairmen.

Howard H. Hawkins of West Covina was elected chairman to succeed Warren W. Butler of Compton. Butler did not seek a second term in the office which he assumed last year following the death of Joseph Jensen of Los Angeles.

Doe, who represents Bueno Colorado Municipal Water District on the Water Authority board, is also a director of Vista Irrigation District.

MWD built and operates the Colorado River Aqueduct and holds the largest of 32 contracts for deliveries from the State Water Project. In turn, it delivers water from these two sources to its 27 member agencies serving 10.5 million people in six Southern California counties.

The Water Authority, an MWD member, owns and operates the pipelines through which this water is delivered to 22 agencies in San Diego county.

For every job in the motor vehicle manufacturing industry, approximately 16 others are generated in allied industries.

VA Processing Viet Vets' School Loan Applications

The San Diego Veterans Administration Regional Office has begun processing applications for new education loans for veterans attending school under the GI Bill. The loans, up to a maximum of $600 in one academic year, were established by the Vietnam Era Veterans Readjustment Assistance Act of 1974.

Loan application forms are available at veterans assistance offices and from VA veterans representatives on college campuses.

The new measure provides that applicants must have exhausted all efforts to obtain student loans administered by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The student must list all lenders applied to, with dates notified of final decisions. If denied a guaranteed student loan, copies of denial statement from each lender must accompany the VA application.

The effective date for the loan program was January 1. However, the VA says that all eligible veterans, wives, widows and children will be considered for initial loans based upon the full amount of their tuition and all other costs of attendance anticipated for the entire 1974-75 academic year. This is considered to have started about September 1.

Under the new law, those granted loans will be required to sign promissory notes agreeing to repayment of principal plus 8 per cent interest. Repayment of principal and interest will be deferred while the student is attending classes at least on a half-time basis.

European Cheese Subsidies Threatening Ca. Dairymen

California dairymen, already smarting under the current inflationary squeeze, are being threatened by the export of cheese from the European community.

According to Allan Grant, president of the California Farm Bureau Federation, European producers have a large surplus of cheese. In order to sell their product in the United States at a competitive price with American cheese, the European community plans to subsidize the cheese at a rate of 14 to 27 cents per pound.

"In order to protect our dairymen, as well as our livestock and poultry producers, from this unfair competition, Farm Bureau has written to Secretray of the Treasury William Simon, calling for the imposition of countervailing duties," Grant said.

The leader of the state's largest farm organization explained that livestock and dairy producers were also in danger since cheese is an alternate protein source. By imposing countervailing duties, cheese subsidized by the European communities would be subject to increased tariffs to enter the United States.

"Very little of the European cheese would be dumped in the U. S. if the subsidies are negated," Grant said, "because prices here are far less than thev are in Europe."

Grant added that "Farm Bureau favors the expansion of mutually advantageous trade with other countries, in accordance with the principle of fair competition. Subsidized foreign commodities represent a breach in fair competitive practices."

California is among the nation's leaders in cheese production. In 1973, the latest year reported, California manufactured over 45.5 million pounds of cheese.

It's Girl Scout Cookie Time Again; Price Rises

A $240,000 goal has been set for the 1975 Annual Girl Scout Cookie Sale, announced Betty Consolin, Cookie Chairman of Lemon Grove-La Mesa area.

The annual sale conducted by an estimated 12,000 Girl Scouts raises funds for program activities, camping facilities and camperships each year in San Diego and Imperial Counties.

The pre-order portion of the sale opens February 28 and continues through March 9.

More P.E. Needed, Task Force Reports

High school students in California should be offered a wider variety of physical education activities and teachers in there programs should provide more individual attention to the physical needs of each student.

These are two of several recommendations made by a California State Department of Education task force study of physical education in the state's high schools.

The study, prepared by David Sweet of the department's Office of Program Evaluation and Research, was requested last year by the State Board of Education and was presented to the Board at its meeting February 13 in Los Angeles.

"High schools should make the necessary changes in their current procedures to effect greater student choice of activities in physical education," the report stated. "Students should be given the opportunity to indicate what activities they would like to have included in the curriculum, and these activities should then be offered as alternatives to the student to the extent practicable."

Sweet said the study also recommends:

- That a physical education class should, in most cases, have no more than 40 students per teacher. The report said more than one-half of all students are now in classes with more than 40 students per teacher.
- That the State Board investigate increasing the use of community facilities to supplement inadequate on-campus physical education facilities.
- That physical education teachers should give more attention to personal improvement by students as a criterion for grading student performance.
- That students be given more responsibility for the effective use of their time.

A questionnaire returned by 43 of the 49 other states to which it was sent indicated that about 50 per cent require physical education in the 9th and 10th grades and only about one-third require it in the 11th and 12th grades. The report said only 30 per cent of the students take physical education courses in the states that do not require it.

The question of whether physical education should be required has been the subject of recurring controversy in California, Sweet said. State law presently requires that each student take not less than 400 minutes of physical education each 10 school days.

The study found substantial agreement among the respondents that 9th and 10th grade students should be required to take physical education, a bit less agreement on requiring it in the 11th grade and a definite disagreement among the groups on requiring it in the 12th grade. A majority of students, principals and counselors said "no" to the requirement in the 12th grade and a majority of parents, physicians and heads of boys' and girls' physical education said "yes."

The study indicated that only one-third of the students surveyed would take physical education if it were not required in the 11th and 12th grades.

Among the 47 members of the California Medical Association (CMA) who returned questionnaires, the consensus was that students have about eight hours a week of moderate to vigorous physical activity, spread over four or five days.

Asked to estimate how many high school students are getting enough exercise, 43 per cent of the doctors said "more than half," 36 per cent, "less than half," 14 per cent thought "almost all," and 7 per cent, "very few."

Students reported that in addition to physical education courses at school they engage in a median of eight hours of moderate to vigorous activity per week outside school, Sweet said. About one-third of the students said they had been on an interscholastic athletic squad in the preceding school year.

A group of 12 physicians on the CMA's Committee on Medical Aspects of Sports and Fitness, issued this statement for the study:

"High school students should be taught skills they will be able to use after they leave school to maintain their physical fitness."

Asked what they would like that is not now offered in physical education, 41 per cent of the students listed judo or karate. Their other listings in this category, in order of preference, were: snow and water skiing, ice skating, skin diving, canoeing and sailing, self defense, bicycling, bowling, camping and hiking, yoga, fencing, boxing, archery, and jazz and tap dancing.

About 60 per cent of the students said they like physical education, but only 36 per cent were strongly convinced that kills learned from it would be useful in recreation outside of school.

More than 60 per cent of the 100 schools at which staff members were surveyed reported that they allow interscholastic athletics to be substituted for physical education classes. Other substitutions permitted included regional occupation training programs (31 per cent of the schools), marching band (29 per cent), driver training (24 per cent) and ROTC (10 per cent).

The report said that "some of the substitutions appear to be in conflict with state law." It recommended that the department send school districts a summary of legal provisions for substituted activities for physical education.

The 34-page report is based on questionnaires filled out by a scientifically selected sample of students, principals, head counselors, physical education teachers, parents and physicians at schools and communities. On-site visitations and interviews were also conducted, Sweet said.

HOME-COOKED This Week's RECIPE

Fried Rice Cooked in a Wok

The energy crisis is nothing new. The ancient Chinese had their own fuel shortage, and thus their cooking techniques were designed for speed and low fuel consumption.

The basic Chinese method of cooking is stir frying, and the basic cooking utensil is the wok, a deep curved bowl supported by a stand, the equivalent of the American skillet.

Because of the popularity of Chinese cookery in this country, several American cookware manufacturers are now marketing woks.

Here is an old favorite recipe that can be cooked in a wok:

CHINESE FRIED RICE
3 tablespoons oil
2 cups onions, coarsely chopped
2 cups cooked rice, cold
2 eggs, beaten
2 tablespoons soy sauce
½ teaspoon salt

Place wok on medium heat, and add oil. Add onions and fry until golden brown. Add cold rice and stir. Add eggs, seasoned with soy sauce and salt. Stir fry until done . . . about 5-10 minutes. As a variation, add your choice of 2 cups of chopped cooked meat, bacon, ham chicken, shrimp or chopped green pepper or roasted peanuts. Serves 4 to 6.

If you would like to share your favorite recipe with our readers, we would be happy to publish it. Submit items c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 127, Lemon Grove 92045.

In this show, Turnbull, who was a professional actor for ten years before going full time in the ministry, portrays an American tourist who receives stolen property while vacationing in "paradise" and gets "arrested" by Jack Lord, who portrays the head of the 5-0 police force, Steve McGarrett.

This is the first time in his four appearances where Turnbull gets only arrested. In other appearances he was murdered. In his three previous "deaths" he was murdered as a Canadian tourist while strolling Waikiki Beach, assassinated as an assistant district attorney, in his office and gunned down as a Roman Catholic priest while aiding a kidnapped girl.

Turnbull's mother is Dr. Amorita Treganza of Lemon Grove.

State Education Dept. Joins Metric Conversion Initiative

California's State Department of Education and representatives from 23 other states have developed a blueprint for converting the nation's schools to teaching the metric system of measurement by Jan. 1, 1980.

Both the guidelines and the target date for converting textbooks and other instructional materials are contained in a report released by the interstate consortium on metric education.

Robert Tardif, director of the consortium project and head of the California department's mathematics education task force, said all participants in the consortium have a system of state adoption of textbooks and thus feel the urgency of long range planning to have new materials reflect the on-rush of the conversion.

While Congress has delayed in adopting general metric legislation, Tardif said, several states, including California, have gone ahead on their own. The California State Board of Education, for example, has directed that all math and science textbooks must contain metric terminology by 1976.

Pressure for action has come from the business world, which wants to make U. S. goods more competitive abroad, and educators who recognize that conversion to metrics confronts American education with a major challenge.

In discussing the advantages of the metric system, the consortium report states:

"It is essentially based on decimal numeration similar to our monetary system and therefore easy to understand and use.

"Its coherence and simplicity are factors which contributed to its acceptance by approximately 90% of the world population."

In providing unified guidelines nationally for the first time, the consortium made 23 recommendations which will be distributed to all state superintendents.

The report, funded jointly by the California State Department of Education and the U. S. Office of Education, recommends that students be taught metrics as part of their instruction in various subjects and not as an isolated topic of study.

Tardif said that measurement has been neglected as a "how to do it" skill.

"Formerly, we told kids all about measurement but gave them little experience actually measuring," he added.

Further emphasizing that teaching the metric system is a multidisciplinary concern, the interstate group recommended that mathematics and science teachers shoulder the major burden but that teachers in all subjects devote attention to the conversion.

Teacher-training institutions were asked to familiarize future teachers with the metric system, starting immediately.

A small variance in spelling which has become controversial in the conversion to metrics was also dealt with by the consortium.

It recommends "re" endings for two basic metric terms: metre, the unit of length, and litre, the unit of capacity. Other professional groups, such as the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics, prefer the "meter" and "liter" spellings.

The report recommends that schools teach how to use 21 metric units of measure and that 11 of them be emphasized, including metre, litre and kilogram. Square kilometres and hectares were the units recommended to describe large land areas.

For teachers directly involved in teaching the metric system, the consortium recommends 10 to 16 hours of instruction. Even more challenging to states with many thousands of teachers is the recommendation that all other teachers receive three to six hours of instruction in metrics.

The California State Department of Education, through its mathematics education task force, has already prepared a manual of developing programs in which teachers will be taught metrics. The task force is also conducting metric workshops for key school personnel in various counties who will supervise the orientation for other teachers.

The task force's goal is to familiarize all California teachers with the metric system by June 1976, in advance of the first statewide use of the math and science textbooks containing metrics that fall.

The consortium, which held meetings last summer and fall in San Mateo, concludes in the preface to its report that "in the absence of a federal mandate," educators must take the responsibility for preparing children "to enter the metric world."

"It is a small world!", the report adds. "People who do not use metric measurement live in an even smaller world, shrinking rapidly. When today's elementary children finish high school, that world will be rather completely metric."

The District of Columbia, American Samoa, Guam and Puerto Rico joined the 24 participating states as part of the consortium.

Is My Child Normal?

It is common for parents to be anxious about the development of their children. Some women have fears during pregnancy about the possibility that they are carrying a child who will not be normal. Others hover over the child anxiously during its early months and years, looking fearfully for signs of abnormality.

Parents should be reassured that most children are normal, but it should be kept in mind that there is a wide range of conditions and behavior that is considered "normal". It should also be remembered that no two children are exactly alike so you cannot accurately judge your child by comparing him with other children. But there are certain developmental steps which most children go through at certain specified ages, and being familiar with them will relieve many anxieties.

Milestones

Here are some approximate milestones which may help you gauge whether your child is developing at a normal rate:

One month—can lift chin off table.

Two months—can lift chest off table.

Three months—reaches for objects but without success.

Four months—can sit with support.

Five months—can sit on lap and grasp small objects.

Six months—can sit in high chair and grasp a dangling object.

Seven months—can sit alone.

Eight months — can stand with help.

Nine months—can stand by holding onto a piece of furniture.

Ten months—can creep.

Eleven months—can walk if led by one hand.

Twelve months—can pull up and stand with the help of furniture.

Thirteen months—can climb up a few stairs.

Fourteen months—can stand alone.

Fifteen months — can walk alone.

Before third birthday—can talk in short sentences.

These milestones are broad generalizations, and a normal child might well be behind or ahead during any developmental phase. Parents should, however, be attentive to the general course of normal development, and any major departure from it should be discussed with the child's doctor.

Percentage Small

Some children are born with gross abnormalities — but the percentage is reassuringly small. In most cases, these abnormalities are evident at birth or during the infant's first year. Many of these abnormalities are inherited; others develop during the course of the pregnancy. In some cases, they can be detected very early in the pregnancy and, if the parents desire it, the pregnancy can be terminated.

Parents who have forebodings for the future of a child whose progress is behind his contemporaries should realize that many illustrious persons in various fields were deficient from early infancy through early school years in one or more aspects of behavior and learning ability.

Although parents should be reasonably alert to the possibility of developmental lag in their child, they should not be overprotective or insist that their child be a carbon copy of all other children. And remember—it is not abnormal to be different!

Kite Douses Brookside Lights

Lights were out in the Brookside area Sunday for nearly an hour when a youngster's kite with a metallic tail fell across power lines in the 3700 block of Fairway dr.

Lights were out from 4 to 4:50 p.m.

It also doused street traffic lights at a nearby intersection but La Mesa Police used emergency power to restore traffic order.

Fotomat Robbed

A black teenager robbed the Fotomat cubicle at 668 Sweetwater rd., in Spring Valley Thursday night about 6 p.m. and made off with about $25 according to Terri Jo Williams, Fotomat clerk.

She said the robber kept his right hand under his jacket and said, "I've got a gun. I want your money." A witness said he may have been in the company of a black female about 25 years of age.

Snack Bar Burglarized

Burglars invaded the snack bar at the Carman Ranch Mobile Manor, 2515 Sweetwater rd., Spring Valley, during the night hours on February 12 and made off with $345 worth of equipment, according to Mary Louise Gobbie, park manager.

Taken were a 60-cup coffee maker, a malt machine and a portable radio. The thief entered through a partially opened window.

Stolen Animals To Be Auctioned By Sheriff S.D.

Ten horses siezed in December during the recovery of the largest cache of hijacked and stolen goods in San Diego County history, will be auctioned to the public February 22.

Four thoroughbreds, three Shetland ponies, an Anglo-Arabian stallion, a Palomino mare in foal, and a Sorrel filly have incurred nealy $4,000 in County costs since being placed with the Humane Society following the raid by Deputy Sheriffs.

They were siezed along with about $300,000 in stolen merchandise at the Hacienda Ranch near Ramona following the arrest of three Los Angeles men at the ranch.

Four other horses siezed at the time have been returned to the rightful owner.

Sheriff John Duffy said the horses, plus a male St. Bernard, a female Doberman, and two "watch geese", were siezed to help establish ownership and to insure their well-being from the abandoned ranch.

Duffy said it costs $46 a day to care for the animals and all must be sold to recover the County's costs.

He said the public auction will be held at 11 a.m., Saturday at the Humane Society, 887 Sherman st. in San Diego.

The Sheriff said bidders must have cash in hand, as he is prohibited from accepting a personal check at such auctions.

'News' Told In Roman Coin Display

Coins were used to spread news of government in the ancient Roman days.

A collection of such coins are on display currently in the San Diego Fine Arts Museum in Balboa Park.

The exhibit, "Historical Implications of Roman Coins" will be on public display through mid-March.

Roman emperors used coins to disseminate governmental "news" to the public because mass media had not been contrived. Since coin use was widespread, the message was engraved on the back. The front was used for a picture and title of the ruler.

Starting with Julius Caesar circa 50 BC, the exhibit comprises 40 bronze and silver coins extending through the third century of the Christian era depicting a wide range of "news" themes.

The coins, some extremely rare, were loaned to the Fine Arts Museum by a group of San Diego collectors.

Smaller coins, such as the silver denarii, about the size of a modern dime, are shown via a photo-blowup type of display along with the coins.

Property Costs Rose, Fewer Sold in '74

The number of property listings went up, but the total number of final sales were down in 1974 compared to 1973 according to San Diego Board of Realtors Multiple Listing Service statistics. Total sales volume in dollars was up, despite the decline in the number of properties sold, indicating inflation-induced property price hikes.

Tools Etched 'PM'

A thief used a pry-bar to take a 20x48x18 tool box from a commercial vehicle belonging to C. Piemme of 3945 El Canto dr., Spring Valley, he reported Thursday mid-morning.

The box contained tools valued at $500 and the letters "PM" (his name is pronounced PM) etched on them by electric pencil.

Title Hopes Still Alive for Mt. Miguel, Monte Vista

Mt. Miguel and Monte Vista's basketball teams both stayed in the playoffs with wins last Friday night, although neither team played impressively.

The Monarchs couldn't seem to find the bucket as they scored only 11 points in the first half of their game against Helix. Luckily, the Highlanders only scored ten. The second half wasn't' much better as Monte Vista out pointed the Scotties 29-27 in that span for a 40-37 final tally.

The Monarchs finished with a 37% shooting average, while Helix shot 27%. Monarch Howard Grunloh was the game's high scorer with 19. Art Castro and Kent Puls each had 10 markers for Helix.

Mount Miguel's Matadors used their press from the outset against Valhalla, but instead of Norsemen turnovers it produced mostly Matador errors throughout the first half.

Miguel turned the ball over nine times in the first eight minutes alone, which allowed Valhalla to cash in on several easy baskets.

The score at intermission was Mt. Miguel 30, Valhalla 23.

The final tally was 51-41 in favor of the Matadors, with La Verle Parker of Mt. Miguel and Norseman Scott Bently sharing scoring honors with 18 points each.

Tomorrow night the Matadors take on Helix at Mt. Miguel, and Monte Vista has a bye.

USD Hoopsters Test 8-1 Home Court Record

Jim Brownell heads his team into the final two weeks of the 1974-75 campaign with three of the remaining four games set for the Toreros gymnasium.

USD has an outstanding 8-1 won-lost home court record and will need all of that edge plus possibly a bit more as it entertains Grand Canyon College, Friday, Cal State Dominguez Hills, Saturday, and San Diego State Tuesday. The Toreros conclude their season with a Feb. 28 contest at Chapman College.

Grand Canyon, one of the nation's top-rated National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics squads, defeated USD, 72-47, at Grand Canyon two weeks ago while Dominguez Hills edged the locals by a 74-67 margin in Compton last week and San Diego State University currently leads the NCAA University Division PCAA.

SSD's overall record is 10-12. Thus, while the team has an impressive 8-1 home court mark, its road reading is 2-11.

Children Sue Father for Wrongful Death

The two children of a Monte Vista High school teacher filed a wrongful death suit against him in California Superior Court.

The suit names Sheldon Wasser, 35, as the defendant. Wasser was cleared of a murder charge in November for the death of his estranged wife, Brenda, 31.

Walter Christensen, attorney representing the two children, set the claim at $500,000.

A jury decided that a .25 caliber pistol handled by Wasser accidentally discharged as he showed it to his wife. Court testimony indicated that he was discussing her watching his home while he went on a trip when the accident occurred.

The suit alleges carelessness and negligence in Wasser's handling of the weapon.

60 Young Athletes Plan International Competition

More than 60 young athletes will compete in Japan, Hawaii and the People's Republic of China (if approved) in July and early August.

Five coaches have already been named with a girls' track and field coach and another baseball coach yet to be named.

Funding for the trip will come from a 'walk' scheduled for March 1 with the time and place yet to be set.

The five coaches are Joe Brooks, Ron Vavra, Ed Teagle, Wayne Dayton and Larry Elliot.

Joe Brooks' teams won four sectional CIF cross country championships and the only state championship ever held (1957) in that event.

Also with 21 years of coaching is jump coach Ed Teagle, at Bonita Vista, whose teams have won nine league championships. He coached 1974 CIF high jump champions Scott Young, 6-8, and Bruce Rosendahl, 6-2.

Larry Elliot, baseball coach, played for the Mets and Pirates in the majors and the AAA San Diego Padres in the minors in his career.

Ron Vavra, of Grossmont, whose track teams have been undefeated in dual meets for five straight years will coach sprinters and hurdlers.

Throwing coach Wayne Layton has had at least two better-than-average weight men during his six years at El Cajon high.

Of the top 10 throwers in the country in 1974, Layton coached four of them.

Powerboat Races Due Here March 1

West coast offshore powerboat racing will unfold Saturday, March 1, when one of the fastest fleets in this sport's history will charge over a torturous 175-mile ocean course off San Diego competing for the winner's circle spotlight in the 1975 PSA Offshore Classic.

More than a dozen of the high-powered ocean racing craft are now scheduled to take to the waves at speeds often exceeding 80 mph in a race sponsored by the San Diego-based Pacific Southwest Airlines.

The race will signal the start of the 1975 offshore racing season on the west coast. The annual offshore circuit, sanctioned by the American Power Boat Association, national governing body for powerboat racing, includes ten races, four of which are run on the Pacific Ocean. All of the local races are run under the jurisdiction of the Pacific Offshore Power Boat Racing Association.

These offshore racing boats are generally 30 to 40 feet in length, and contain marine powerplants delivering from 1200 to 1600 horsepower and upwards.

The public is invited to view the superb racing boats at the race headquarters Islandia Hyatt House on Mission Bay, both before and after the race. The boats will be on hand all day Friday, February 28, for formal inspection, as well as before and after the race on Saturday. A public communications center on the hotel grounds will keep those on shore informed of race progress, commencing at 10 a.m., scheduled time for the race start.

TAKE FIVE

By John E. Wirges

It's such a great shooting idea, you wonder why nobody thought it up before. It'll keep you shooting all year around, and not at just a bunch of little animals, either. If we work it right, maybe we can go against the deadliest of all critters . . . man himself.

All we have to do is form a posse and be ready to fight bad guys. That's hunting in the best tradition.

We could call ourselves the "Shoot Without Any Tears" posse, or SWAT for short. And we don't need no presidents, or somebody in charge, or nothing like that. Cause everybody knows that anybody that has a gun is equal to anybody else.

Of course, we don't want to go around hurting each other, so what we do is get everybody decked out in one of them fancy "bullet-proof" jackets. You even "feel" invulnerable in a rig like that.

Then there's the matter of identification. Seems like it would be a good idea if all the SWATers wore some kind of fancy shield, or badge, or star or something like that, I mean without a badge of somekind, how can you tell the good guys from the bad guys?

Every SWATer would have to get a police band radio and listen in on all the calls. Then, when a bunch of wild kids take over a school bus, like they did in Boston last week; or when a gang of poachers start stealing bass out of a hatchery pool, like what happened up in Northern California last month; then local SWATers could swing into action and wipe the crooked critters right out of existence.

Why, we'd become the "heros" of our kind of folks. Of course, we'd have to keep trouble makers out of our posse. You know the kind I mean. Guys with different ideas, guys that are really "different" in their looks and outlooks. No need to have "them" around. They're usually the ones that cause all the trouble in the first place. We don't need 'em.

And nobody had better ask to look at our guns, either. It's our own business how many and what kind of guns we have. It's an old American tradition.

Besides, if you and your weapons ever get on somebody's list you'll never know who else will see it. Even the Communists could get a look at it. A man's guns are his own business and nobody else's.

But, other than the danger of somebody finding out your own business, being a SWAT posseman would be great. Just think of all the fun we'd have. The excitement of the "hunt" just around the corner all year around. And all the time acting in the interests of our "own" kind of people and eliminating a bad element from society.

Why, becoming a SWATer would be the mark of being a good citizen.

Soo, instead of taking down your old 12-gauge after you've collared a herd of quail or shot down a ton of ducks, just oil the old gal up and keep her handy for a real hunting season.

Now, our SWAT posse should never be confused with the Sheriff's or Police Department's S.W.A.T. (Special Weapons and Tactics) teams. They are a lot different than the one proposed here.

Sheriff and PD S.W.A.T. teams are made up of highly disciplined, extremely sensitive, especially educated, maturely proven, experienced officers who only shoot when life or limb are in immediate danger.

And they always maintain direct and close contact with the guy running the show by closed circuit, two-way radio communications that ensures absolute control of each situation. Everything they do is perfect. Ask any of their bosses.

Why, that kind of setup takes all the fun out of hunting, shooting or chasing bad guys to earth. No sir, we'd be nothing like them.

'Pintos' Defend County Soccer Title Saturday

The Pintos, division V champions of the Suburban Youth Soccer League of La Mesa-Spring Valley area, represent the East County area in the San Diego County Cup finals held Saturday, in Balboa Stadium.

Playoffs for the County Cup Tournament have been going on for the past five weeks with teams from the various San Diego county leagues playing each other in knock-out competition.

Kicking off beginning at 9 a.m. Saturday will be the final two teams in each of the following divisions: division II, 14-15 years; division III, 12-13 years; division IV, 10-11 years; division V, 8-9 years; and division VI, 6-7 years. Division V is expected to take the field at 11 a.m.

Tickets are $1 for adults and those under 18 are admitted free. Tickets can be purchased at the gate.

In addition to the County Cup finals, the Suburban Youth Soccer League will also be represented in California State Cup play by the Pintos and Falcons, division V; Chargers, division IV; and Rangers, division III.

Press Tourney Draws Athletes

Padre manager John McNamara and pitching coach Tom Morgan, along with Charger coaches John David Crow and Jackie Simpson, will be among more than 50 professional athletes participating in the Camel Filter/TV Guide Sports Invitational to benefit the San Diego Press Club.

The tournament at the Whispering Palms Country Club on February 28 is open to area amateur golfers and reservations are being taken at the Press Club. A banquet following golf is included in the program.

American League umpires Paul Runge and Doug Harvey, former Chargers Speedy Duncan, Lance Alworth, John Hadl, and Steve DeLong, and former major league stars Larry French, Al Zarilla and Ray Boone also are entered.

Tournament sports committee members include Buzzie Bavasi, Jerry Coleman, Terry Owens, Jeff Staggs and Jack Murphy.

Art Hafey to Headline Friday's Coliseum Show

Popular featherweight contender Art Hafey will face the challenge of upset-minded Julio Leal this Friday in the 10 round feature attraction at the Coliseum.

The Pacific Beach-based Hafey, ranked fifth in the world among 126 pounders, looked superb in his fifth round stoppage of Jorge Valenzuela last time out on January 31. The bout was to be a tune-up for a February 28 meeting in Caracas with Alfredo Mercano, but the affair has been postponed three weeks at the request of the former junior lightweight champion.

Leal, a rangy youngster from El Centro, pulled off the first ring surprise of the new year in holding local teenager Manuel Lujan to a disputed draw here last week. Climbing off the canvas in the second round, Leal took the play away from the unbeaten Lujan in the later stages of the fight, cutting his eye in the process.

"Meeting Hafey is a big opportunity for me," notes Julio. "I dropped a decision to him three years ago at the Forum in Los Angeles, but that's when my career was just beginning. Now I feel I have the experience to reverse that loss."

Last Week

Julio Leal, the same featherweight who mixes it with high-ranking Art Hafey this week, gave schoolboy Manuel Lujan a boxing lesson Friday.

Lujan seemed to be sharp but he danced so much that he didn't get set to counter-punch as has been his custom. Leal tracked him and from time to time cut him off at the pass. And when he did he powdered Lujan.

Leal was dropped in the second round but it had little effect on his aggresiveness. Ring officials called it a draw but without the knockdown which seemed to be delivered when Leal was off balance, the decision would have gone to Leal — giving Lujan his first defeat in 14 fights.

In a lightheavy 10-rounder, the unanimous decision was given to Ronnie Wilson, an aging pro, over Dave "Cueball" Harmon. 10 rounds was too much for Harmon. He needed training.

Another Leal, Eladio Leal of Cuba, who is not related to Julio Leal, scored a TKO over Carols Perez at 1:53 of the third round.

La Costa's Net Classic Draws Movie, TV Celebs

Clint Eastwood, Merv Griffin, David Hartman, George Peppard and Don Meredith lead a talented posse of tennis-playing celebrities who swing into action tomorrow as part of the $60,000 Michelob Pro-Celebrity Classic at La Costa — and the public can watch.

Burt Bacharach, Beau Bridges, Robert Duval, Gene Hackman, Rod Steiger, Doug McClure, Chad Everett, Richard Crenna and Lloyd Bridges also will participate in the special competition.

And Bill Cosby, who has earned significant recognition for his tennis ability, will join his pals on Sunday.

Friday, the opening of the celebrity competition, also will be Senior Citizens Day with senior citizens able to purchase a $6 reserved seat for only $3.

And Family Night will be celebrated Friday evening starting at 7 o'clock when all children in a family pay only $1.50, the woman adult $3 and the head of the family pays the regular reserved seat price of $6.

Day And Night

Of course, the pros will be in action each day and night playing for the $12,000 awarded to the singles champion and $6,000 for the winning doubles team.

The pro field, which opened action last Monday, includes Rod Laver, Roscoe Tanner, Raul Ramirez, Colin Dibley, Roy Emerson, Brian Gottfried, and Vistas Gerulaitis.

Semi-final rounds of the singles are scheduled for Friday afternoon and evening along with quarterfinal rounds of the doubles.

The singles finals will be played Saturday along with both doubles semifinals. Doubles finals will be Sunday, as well as the third-place singles playoff and a special doubles exhibition featuring Pancho Gonzales and Pancho Segura. Saturday and Sunday matches start at noon.

There are those who maintain that Bill Cosby easily would have been a successful tennis pro had he concentrated on the sport. But even at the Michelob he can be counted on to mix comedy with his overhead smash.

Other top celebrity players include David Hartman, who turned down a baseball contract; Beau Bridges, a La Costa winner two years ago; Robert Duval, a familiar doubles partner of professionals; Rod Steiger, who practices as hard as he plays; and Merv Griffin, whose uncle, Clarence, won the 1920 national doubles.

CHP Sees Success in Bike Safety Program

A two-year California Highway Patrol campaign to reverse a bicycle accident uptrend resulted in lower fatalities the past two years, despite a huge increase in the number of bikes on the road.

Commissioner Dan Lanza said California bike deaths totaled a provisional 108 last year, down 10 from 1973 and 20 less than 1972. Injuries dropped 2 percent in 1973, and last year held virtually even. The bicycle population grew by an estimated one million during each of these years, "greatly increasing the accident potential."

In 1972, bike injuries and deaths virtually doubled the figures of just three years earlier. The CHP estimated that continuation of the trend would have produced another 30 percent jump in 1973.

Lanza said a new enforcement program and increased elementary level education were initiated in late 1972 to halt the trend.

"Bicycle citations jumped 499 percent — to a total of 37,772 — in 1973, and youngsters under 15 became subject to an informal citation which resulted in a cautioning letter to parents.

"These programs, coupled with the additional education held 1973 fatal and injury bicycle accidents below the 197[illegible] count and nearly 25 percen[illegible] below the trend prediction made a year earlier," Lanza said.

About two-thirds of the riders killed or injured in 197[illegible] were 14 or under. In 1969, younger riders made up four-fifths of the casualties, "pointing up the increase in accidents involving older riders.'

Lanza said that "success of the campaign means we will continue it, with emphasis during the warmer months when bicycle accidents typically increase."

Walkway Widening For Post Office

The narrow, one-passenger walkway that connects the Lemon Grove Post Office's rear parking with the front entrance is being widened. The walkway is between the Post Office and Crocker Bank.

Nate Hale, Postmaster, said that use of the Lester ave. parking area in back of the Post Office had become more popular as Broadway parking became more scarce.

The widened walkway will do away with much of the planting growing there, he said.

Evans Construction Co. of La Mesa has been awarded the contract.

AAA 'Bike Lane' Visits San Altos Next Thursday

Approximately 120 Lemon Grove youngsters will participate in a bicycle safety program next Thursday designed to curb bike injuries, encourage greater rider responsiveness, and test overall riding skills.

Charles F. Lunsford, East San Diego district office manager for the Automobile Club of Southern California, said the Auto Club's Bicycle Safety Lane" will be at San Altos School, 1750 Madera st., beginning at 1 p.m. Officer Frank Glass of the California High way Patrol will be there to conduct a bike rodeo.

The Safety Lane was recently at Lemon Grove Junior High school.

Using a modified dynamometer, similar to those used in checking automobiles, the unique Bicycle Safety Lane tests such important bike safety features as wheel and frame alignment, spokes, bearings and brakes. Handlebars, grips, lights and reflectors are checked visually at the same time.

"Provided annually to more than 56,976 cyclists in Southern California, this free Auto Club service stimulates an awareness of safe cycling and alerts students and parents to needed repairs and/or desirable safety accessories," Lunsford added.

Clyde Smith Joins Construction Group

Clyde V. Smith, former real estate and building editor of the San Diego Union, has joined the staff of the Construction Industry Advancement Fund of San Diego (CIAF) as a consultant to provide information services.

He will work in information and editorial research as well as communication with the news media.

Smith retired from the newspaper at the end of last year, following more than 26 years with the Union as a reporter and real estate editor. His newspaper career, which began in Idaho, spanned more than 47 years. During the last decade, Smith has been a prize winner, receiving several top national awards for his real estate news reporting.

CIAF is a relatively new organization, established during labor negotiations in 1972 and renewed last year.

Phone Service Takes Pollution Complaints

Assemblyman Wadie P. Deddeh announced the creation of a 24-hour telephone service for citizens to report industrial and other stationary air pollution violations.

The phone line has been established by the California Air Resources Board in an effort to reduce pollution problems such as excessive smoke from industrial smoke stacks, odors and agricultural burning on non-burn days.

"Every day, someone sees some sort of air pollution violation. The typical response is to wish something could be done but then to do nothing at all," Deddeh said.

"Now there is an easy way to voice complaints. People may call my office at 427-7080 or phone directly to the head of the Compliance Unit of the Air Resources Board at (916) 322-6022," he said.

Callers should be prepared to tell the exact location and time the air pollution problem occurred, the type of problem and whether or not they have photographs of the alleged violations.

"The new system for accepting pollution reports should be a major weapon in the fight to keep our air clean and breathable. Callers' messages will be tape recorded and acted upon as soon as possible," Deddeh said.

Road Equipment Taken

Henry C. Thweatt supervisor for the Daley Corp., doing road work at State 94 and Panorama dr., Spring Valley, told sheriff's deputies that someone used bolt cutters to enter a fenced in area where tools and machinery are kept.

Taken was a high-cycle generator valued at $1,400, a concrete vibrator, $2,500 and tools estimated to be worth $300.

The loss was reported February 6.

Guess Who?

WHO IS THIS? This is mystery businessperson No. 20. If you recognize her or have an idea where you might find her, take this photo to her place of business somewhere in Lemon Grove's central shopping district. If you are the first to correctly identify her, she will award you a prize. Last week, Steve Griggs and Ron Billingsley were the first to identify Williie Koussonmbus, waitress at Bueno's Mexican Restaurant at 7309 Broadway. They won two Mexican dinners.

Congress to Look at ARCO For Conservation Policies

U. S. Representative Lionel Van Deerlin,, D-San Diego, has asked a conservation-minded House subcommittee to investigate operations of the Atlantic Richfield Corp. (ARCO) in San Diego County.

He told Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., that company rules requiring 25 of the 109 ARCO stations in the county to stay open all night "fly directly in the face of national fuel conservation policies."

Dingell is chairman of the energy and environment subcommittee of the House Select Committee on Small Business. The subcommittee is new this year, with a mandate to encourage sound fuel conservation practices.

Van Deerlin said some area ARCO dealers are losing more than $600 a month keeping their stations open late at night. He asked:

"Why should one major company go out of its way to make gas so much more readily available than normal demand would seem to warrant?"

"Several San Diego dealers have already been stripped of their franchises," after ARCO found them closing early, he said.

Van Deerlin said the company can revoke a franchise after four violations. He said 29 of the San Diego dealers have been gigged a total of 63 times by the parent corporation, over the past six months.

Many dealers are unhappy with the franchise agreements with ARCO but have little recourse since lease renewals are not negotiable and the dealers are prone to go along with the company in order to protect their own investment, he said. (ARCO owns the land, its service stations, but the dealers provide the equipment.)

When a dealer loses his franchise, Van Deerlin went on, an ARCO subsidiary takes over the stations. "The dealer, that independent small businessman, is then completely out of the picture, along with buildings and pumps used by most of his employees."

Van Deerlin said local ARCO dealers would be willing to testify and otherwise cooperate in any probe by Dingell's subcommittee.

Alien-Smuggling Brings L.G. Man Three-Year Term

A wire service story reported that Arthur P. Husoan, 48, of 8313 Broadway lane, Lemon Grove, had been sentenced to three years in prison after being convicted of smuggling illegal aliens into the United States from Mexico.

He is reported to have been arrested near Los Angeles when police heard noise coming from within the five-ton truck he was driving.

They found 24 illegal aliens inside whom they say had gone without food or water for a day or longer.

The aliens said they had paid $200-$250 to be smuggled in from Tijuana.

NOTICE OF FILING APPLICATION FOR INCREASES FOR INTRASTATE TELEPHONE RATES

The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company on February 13, 1975 filed with The Public Utilities Commission of The State of California an application for authority to increase certain intrastate rates and charges applicable to telephone service furnished within The State of California. The proposed rate increases would permit Pacific to recover increases in operating costs, principally increased wages, for the twelve month period ending June 30, 1976.
In general terms, the proposed rate changes are as follows:
Basic exchange rates would be increased for both residence and business telephone service. For residence the monthly increase would range from $.55 to $.80 per main telephone, except for 30 message allowance service, where an increase of $.35 is proposed. An increase ranging from $1.05 to $2.05 is proposed per main business telephone. Foreign exchange service rates and PBX trunk rates would be increased generally in the same proportion as main station rates. Certain Centrax and airport intercommunicating system service rates would be increased to maintain relationship with basic exchange rates.
The message unit charge for multi-message unit messages would be increased from $.05 to $.057 per unit. Foreign exchange service and coin-box service message unit charges would increase from $.06 to $.07.
The single local message charge for exchange messages placed from message rate telephones would increase from $.05 to $.057. Foreign exchange local message unit charges would increase from $.06 to $.07.
Establish a charge for supersedure of basic exchange service of $7.50 for residence service and $15.00 for business service.
Implement a charge for the restoral of basic exchange service temporarily discontinued for non-payment of bills. This charge would be 50% of the in-place service connection charge.
Non-recurring charges for the establishment of certain private line services would be increased.
The rates proposed in the application are estimated to produce additional annual gross revenue of $131,200,000, which represents a 5% increase in total local and toll intrastate revenues. This is in addition to the $97,900,000 rate application (no. 55214) filed in 1974, which was to recover increases in the costs of wage, salary and related expenses for the twelve months ending June 30, 1975.
Notice of hearings on the application will be posted and published not less than five nor more than thirty days prior to the initial hearings.
The Company's proposed rates would become effective in various California Counties and municipal corporations, including the County of San Diego, upon grant of authority therefor by The California Public Utilities Commission.
A copy of the application may be inspected by any interested person in the office of The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company at 1188 6th Ave. San Diego, Cal. and in the offices of The Public Utilities Commission of The State of California, Fifth Floor, State Building, Civic Center, San Francisco, California, and State Office Building, 107 South Broadway, Los Angeles, California.

Thermal Energy VIP is Spring Valley Woman's Son

Dr. Robert Fournier, son of Mrs. Gertrude Fournier, 1960 Avon ln., Spring Valley, has been selected chairman of the U. S. Organizing Committee of the second United Nations Geothermal Energy Symposium, scheduled for May in San Francisco. The symposium is expected to attract more than a thousand participants from 50 countries.

Fournier chairs an organizing committee of 21 members which includes a cross-section of government, scientific and industry people.

Because of the international implications of the seminar, the United Ntaions and the U.S. State Department are also involved in the conference.

The first U.N. geothermal symposium was held in Pisa, Italy, in the fall of 1970. Tentative plans were made at that time for a second conference in 1976.

The fuel crisis caused the second session to take on more immediate significance, and thus moved the date ahead one year.

Fournier was a straight-A student at Grossmont High school who won a scholarship to Harvard to study geology. He went on to the University of California at Berkeley on a teaching fellowship and earned his doctorate within three years. He is now an international consultant on thermal energy.

Drive Starts For Legalized Dog Betting

Golden State Greyhound Association will start a petition drive in San Diego County on February 24, as part of it's statewide effort to legalize dog racing in California.

In a letter to County members notifying them of a dinner meeting in the Uptown Hall Scotty Young, County director of the G.S.G.A. said 10,000 signatures would be sought within two weeks.

After working passively for several months, Young, warming to the battle ahead, said in the letter, "you are reminded that the opposition consists of but a handful of greedy, vested-interest, arrogant people who's sole interest is confined to themselves — the people are for this bill.

"This drive will not only demonstrate our ability to place this measure on a ballot initiative next year, should circumstances so dictate, it will display our strength politically, proving once and for all that we cannot and shall not be stopped until California's discrimination against greyhound racing is ended."

The petition is directed to San Diego Country's five Assemblymen and three Senators in Sacramento. Proponents of dog racing have stated repeatedly, that, should their bill fail this time, they will place it on the ballot next year.

They have further pledged to place on the ballot a second proposition which would outlaw all pari-mutuel wagering in the state.

Transportation Hearings Start Tonight in S.D.

The Comprehensive Planning Organization of the San Diego Region (CPO) will present its proposed Regional Transportation Plan (RTP) to the general public this month for final comments and opinions before adoption of the plan in March.

The CPO board of directors will take testimony on the transportation plan from citizens throughout the region at two different locations on separate dates.

Tonight at 7 p.m., a public hearing will be held in the Copper Room of the Community Concourse, 202 C st., in downtown San Diego, and on February 27, 7 p.m., the second hearing will be at the El Camino Country Club, 3203 Vista Way in Oceanside (El Camino Real and Highway 78).

The hearings will be the final opportunity for residents of the San Diego region to affect the finally adopted plan. Although the public hearing process is required by state law, CPO Chairman of the Board James Hobel explains: "Citizen input has played an important role in the development of this plan. We are concerned that the public believes it has an effect in decision-making.

The Board of Directors has approved public distribution of the RTP so that citizens will be able to address themselves to it at the hearings.

Copies of the plan and a shorter summary are available at the CPO offices, public libraries and member agency offices throughout the San Diego area.

The proposed RTP includes a regional fixed-guideway, rapid-transit system and its supportive express and local bus equipment. This portion of the RTP has received the most attention to date. CPO is recommending the system in such a way as to allow for selection of various options of technology, hardware, and actual station locations, which could be made in conjunction with local government and the proposed operating district.

At the end of this 20-year period, decisions could be made to extend or terminate development of the system. CPO has used the 20-year period as a parameter by which to project costs.

Once the finalized transportation plan is adopted by the Board, the San Diego Region will have the first public program which identifies region-wide highway and transit improvements relating to local and regional land development policy.

It will also serve as the basis upon which the use of local, state and federal funds for transportation will be allocated during the next 20 years.

CAR Investigates

Converters' Sulfur May Be New Emissions Hazard

California Air Resources Board has scheduled a special hearing March 6 to review evidence that pollution control equipment used on most 1975 model passenger vehicles may cause a severe health problem.

ARB Chairman Tom Quinn said that the Board is "extremely concerned" by reports from the Federal Environmental Protection Agency that catalytic converters may emit large quantities of sulfates and sulphuric acid. Most auto manufacturers use such converters on 1975 cars in order to meet stringent hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide standards.

"It is possible that the catalysts are creating a significant new health danger," Quinn said, "and we are anxious to examine the problem and decide what steps the State must take."

Standards Upheld

Quinn stressed that relaxation of emissions standards "will absolutely not be considered" by the ARB.

"The auto industry voluntarily chose the catalysts over other alternatives and we will not allow their decision, which may have been a bad one, to force an easing of standards," he explained.

The special hearing was called by Quinn in response to a preliminary EPA study which indicates that California could be faced with a serious sulfate and sulphuric acid problem by 1977 or 1978.

The catalytic converters are being used on almost all autos sold in California, which has more stringent emission standards than the other 49 states. The catalysts are also used on most cars sold in other States.

Last week EPA reported that continued use of catalysts may create a health danger, however, which outweighs the benefits of added hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide controls.

Quick Action Needed

"If the preliminary EPA report is verified, we must act immediately before the problem becomes acute," Quinn said. "The Board may consider new control strategies, such as legislation requiring removal of sulfur from gasoline, or we could force auto makers to look to other technology, such as stratified charge engines."

Quinn said it could take as long as five years for the petroleum industry to install all the equipment needed to de-sulfurize gasoline, but, he explained, it may be possible to remove sulfur from non-leaded gasoline in a much shorter time. All catalyst-equipped cars require non-leaded gasoline.

Officials from the EPA, the auto industry, and the petroleum industry, as well as private citizens, are invited to the one-day hearing, which is held at 10 a.m. in the auditorium of the Resources Building, 1416 9th st., Sacramento.

$72 in Food Taken

Veronica Marie Paton, 26, owner of Little Italy pizza, 1125 Sweetwater rd., Spring Valley, told sheriff's deputies that someone had broken into the restaurant during the closed hours on February 11 and took Italian goodies valued at $72.

Missing were cheeses, steaks, salami and torpedo sandwiches.

BoA Earns More in '74

BankAmerica Corporation set new highs in earnings, deposits and resources in 1974, President A. W. Clausen reported last week.

Consolidated income before securities transactions rose 17 percent to $256,652,000 or $3.72 per share for the twelve months ended December 31. This compared with $219,160,000 or $3.18 per share in 1973, Clausen said.

Poison Center Claims 25,000 Were Saved

Another phone call. Another life saved. That was the story 13,414 times last year when the lives of exactly that many San Diego County residents hung on a call to the San Diego Poison Information Center.

Marking its third anniversary recently, the Center has saved more than 25,000 persons from possible death or serious toxic effects of poisoning since it opened at University Hospital in 1972. Not a single death has followed a call to the Center, reports Mrs. Betts Wallace, Center supervisor.

The 19,000 calls received last year included 12,400 frantic appeals after accidental poisonings, and 1,043 from individuals who took poison or drug overdose intentionally and then thought better of it.

Toxic Toddlers

The largest number of emergencies concerned youngsters between two and three. More than 2,700 curious toddlers ingested a variety of household cleaners, home workshop and hobby fixings, loose pills and medications, poisonous house plants and garden bulbs and shrubs. Close behind that age group were 2,175 one-year-olds and 1,302 three-year-olds.

Two-thirds of the poison cases are treated over the telephone. The rest are directed to the nearest hospital emergency room which is alerted in advance to be ready by the Center staff members, who are on duty 24 hours seven days a week.

The Center has witnessed dramatic growth since it opened in 1972 in a cubbyhole outside the University Hospital pharmacy with one volunteer worker, a desk, and a phone that rang a dozen dimes a day. The staff now numbers 10 paid employees, and phone calls have quadrupled to more than 1,600 a month.

Mrs. Wallace suggested four steps to lessen the danger of fatal poisoning:

"Avoid keeping poisonous house plants like dieffenbachia and philodendron and any bulbs where children can get at them.

"Give a poison victim water to drink immediately, even before calling the hotline.

"Keep Ipecac on hand away from where children can reach it — for use when an emetic is required.

"Keep the Poison Information Center number — 294 6000 — on your telephone."

ASCC Official Gives Auto Upkeep Hints

Find a good, competent mechanic and stick with him is the hint given by members of the Independent Garage Owners Assn. (IGO) which is now a part of the Automotive Service Council of California (ASCC), according to John Skinner, seretary of the San Diego Unit of ASCC.

Skinner operates Rite Time repair service at 8802 Troy st., Spring Valley.

"The car owner who takes his car to the same mechanic all the time is doing himself and his car a favor," he said.

"The mechanic becomes familiar with both the customer and the automobile if he services the car regularly," Skinner said.

He said Association members adhere to a strict code of ethics and they stand unconditionally behind the services they perform and the products they sell.

The code:

Promote good will between motorists and the Association.

Sense of personal obligation to each individual customer.

Perform high quality repair services at a fair and just price.

Employ the best skilled mechanic obtainable.

Use only proven merchandise of high quality.

Itemize all parts and mechanical adjustments in the price charged for service rendered.

Retain all parts for customer inspection.

Uphold the high standards and seek to correct abuses within the industry.

Uphold the integrity of all members.

Stand unconditionally behind the services performed and products sold.

ASCC is the state's largest auto repair service trade association.

The most populous county is Los Angeles with nearly 7 million people.

Food Stamp Coupons Change March 1

The U. S. Department of Agriculture replaces the current 50 cent, $2 and $5 food stamp series with a $1, $5, and $10 series, on March 1.

USDA's Food and Nutrition Service said that the larger denominations were prompted by the volume of coupons needed to meet increased food stamp allotments, paper shortages, and increased production and shipping costs.

All current coupons not issued by February 28 will be collected and destroyed. Food stamp recipients must spend their current food stamps by June 30, since retailers will not accept any old coupons after that date.
